METO TRACEABILITY LABELLING

Are You EC compliant with your meat and fish labelling for traceability...?

The EC regulation is applicable for all selling fresh or frozen beef and fish. This means that it applies to all butchers, market stalls, mobile shops, supermarkets and catering butchers handling fresh meat, poultry or fish for resale.

What information need to be shown on the meat label:

- Reference number or code
- Slaughtered in (name of member state or third country)
- License number slaughterhouse
- Cutting/Cut in (name of member state or third country)
- License number(s) of cutting plant(s)
- The name of the member state or third country in which the animal / group of animals were born
- The name of the member state or third country in which the animal / group of animals were raised

Fish Labelling Application.

The fish labelling system is a compulsory European Community (EC) system that is intended to provide buyers with clear, reliable information about fish. It means the responsibility is on you, to label the fish you stock or sell so that it can be traced back to its source or face a hefty fine.

METO MEAT TAGGING SYSTEM

Use for all food produce such as fish, fruit, vegetables and meat

The food tagging system has proved very useful in the meat slaughtering process for enabling the identification of parts from a carcass.

Key Features of the Meto Food Tagging System:

- Easy to load, easy-to-use trigger action
- Metal parts are made from stainless steel to resist rust
- Lightweight
- Safety cap can help preventing any injuries
